Newly Inaugurated Mayor Visits UA College of Medicine – Phoenix

Just hours after taking office, the newly elected mayor of Phoenix, Greg Stanton, met with students, faculty and staff on the campus of the UA College of Medicine – Phoenix.

Stanton, who led the development of the downtown Phoenix campus as a councilman, expressed his ongoing commitment to the College and the entire Phoenix Biomedical Campus.

UA Transplant Program Performs 100 Kidney Transplants in 2011

On Dec. 13, a 57-year-old Tucson businessman and racehorse aficionado received an amazing gift. Felipe Pinedo Jr.’s niece donated a kidney to her uncle, who became the 100th kidney-transplant patient at The University of Arizona Medical Center in 2011.

UA Nursing Students Produce Educational Video

UA nursing students have developed an educational video to teach patients how to use an incentive spirometer, a device that will help them breathe. The project has fostered communication, collaboration and leadership skills among the students, while offering a new mechanism for them to impact patients’ lives directly. “It’s our way of getting out in the community,” said nursing senior
UA College of Science Lecture Series, "Living Beyond 100"
Centennial Hall
UA Main Campus

UAHSC Researchers Find New Use for Toenails

Scientists from the UA Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health and the UA College of Pharmacy are collaborating on a seed grant to study the relationship between arsenic in human toenails and arsenic concentration in drinking water. They hope to find effective ways for people to reduce their exposure to the element.

Megan Graham.

Pharmacy Students & Faculty Teach the Community about OTC Medications

Over-the-counter medications can be as hazardous as prescription drugs. The UA College of Pharmacy is reaching out to the community to allay the danger.