In The News
Friday, March 30, 2012

New high in U.S. autism rates inspires renewed debate (The University of Arizona Department of Pediatrics/Steele Children’s Research Center and the Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health were involved in this CDC study)

Doctor Asks: What Is Consciousness? (Stuart Hameroff, MD)

New interactive website helps kids learn about the environment (UA Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health)

Alzheimer’s And Treating Zinc Imbalance

Med Students not Worried About Primary Physician Shortage (UA College of Medicine-Phoenix)

Rival out, path clear for Carmona in Democrat race

Alcohol linked to diabetes - study (Tedd Goldfinger, DO, FACC, Dept. of Cardiology, University of Arizona School of Medicine, Tucson, Arizona)