In The News
Tuesday, May 22, 2012

Tourney named for judge aims to fund ALS research (Jim Himelic Neuromuscular Research Laboratory, formerly the UA Department of Neurology's stem cell laboratory)

The Medicare “Wellness” Farce (Jane M. Orient, M.D., Executive Director of Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, clinical lecturer in medicine at the University Of Arizona College Of Medicine)

Predicting Response to Therapy in Mild Persistent Asthma (Lynn Gerald, PhD, MSPH, professor in the Department of Health Promotion Sciences and associate dean of research in the College of Public Health at the University of Arizona)

Recommendation against prostate screening shakes medicine (Dr. Richard Ablin, immunobiologist at the University of Arizona College of Medicine)

Right-Wing Rule: Education (UA Medical School's Phoenix campus will get a boost of $6 million)

Former boss levies accusations vs. Carmona (Iman Hakim, UA College of Public Health at the University of Arizona)

Lumenis Aligns with Globally Renowned Urologists at AUA to Review Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH) (Joel Funk, MD, Assistant Professor of Clinical Surgery University of Arizona Medical Center)

iPad may be a key to unlocking the minds of children with autism (Sydney Rice, a developmental pediatrician and member of the University of Arizona Steele Children's Research Center)

Your Stories of Being Sick Inside The U.S. Health Care System (Aimee Snyder, MPH Student in Health Behavior and Health Promotion program at the UA College of Public Health)

Top 5 Hormone Superheroes: My 'Genius Bar' (Dr. Andrew Weil, Director and Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of Arizona)

Lowering Stroke Risk in Women: What Really Works (Leslie Ritter, PhD and Bruce Coull, MD)