In The News
Monday, October 1, 2012

» Arizona's health-care future starts now (Health Sciences Education Building on the Phoenix Biomedical Campus grand opening on Friday at 9 a.m.)

» Stopping Colon Cancer (Eugene Gerner, Ph.D., director of The Gastrointestinal Cancer Program at the Arizona Cancer Center in Tucson)

» 'Answering Patients' Most Frequently Asked Questions About Arthritis

» Use of Standard Webcam and Internet Equipment for Telepsychiatry Treatment of Depression Among Underserved Hispanics (Francisco A. Moreno, MD)

» Music that scientifically lowers blood pressure (UA Study)

» NAU receives $6 million for Indian health research (University of Arizona Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health)

» Moving Up: Keith W. Aspinall has joined the University of Arizona's Bio5 Institute as director of strategic operations

» Pharmacists should specialise in psychiatry pharmacy practice: Lisa Goldstone

» Doctor explains best way to stay healthy (Dr. Andrew Weil)

» People in Action: Neurosurgeon Ali A. Baaj, MD, a specialist in minimally invasive spine surgery, has joined the University of Arizona Department of Surgery

» People in Action: Neurosurgeon Ali A. Baaj, MD, a specialist in minimally invasive spine surgery, has joined the University of Arizona Department of Surgery

» People in Action: The University of Arizona College of Pharmacy has hired Dr. Eli Chapman as an assistant professor in the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology.

» People in Action: The University of Arizona College of Pharmacy has hired Dr. Marcella Hoyland as an assistant professor in the Department of Pharmacy Practice and Science

» El Tour de Tucson turns 30 and honors Andy Clarke (The University of Arizona
Medical Center continues as the title sponsor of El Tour

ABOR approves funding to study possible University of Arizona veterinary program