Vicki Fleischer

Interim Senior Vice President Named for New Health Sciences Development Team

Sept. 11, 2019

As we begin this fall to fully pursue our University of Arizona Health Sciences initiatives as part of the larger University of Arizona strategic plan, we also are preparing to increase our efforts to engage philanthropic support to help us achieve our strategic goals. Part of the new structure that will enable us to take health sciences gift support to the next level is a senior vice president for development who will lead a team that connects donors with the transformative work we are doing across our campuses in Tucson and Phoenix.

Michael D. Dake, MD

I am pleased to announce that Vicki Fleischer, senior vice president for the university development program at the University of Arizona Foundation, has been appointed interim senior vice president for health sciences development while a national search is conducted to fill the position permanently. She will begin her new role on Sept. 12.

Over the last four years, Vicki has served as one of the senior members of the leadership team at the UA Foundation, guiding the major and principal gifts team to the most successful fundraising period in the university's history. During her career at the university, she also has served as a development officer for the James E. Rogers College of Law and for the Eller College of Management. I am confident that Vicki will help establish a successful development organization that will enable health sciences gift support to flourish for years to come.

In addition to announcing Vicki's new role, I also want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to Manon O'Connor for her outstanding efforts as acting associate vice president and chief development officer for health sciences as we prepared for our new development structure. Her dedication and hard work enabled our fundraising to continue moving forward without missing a beat.

Please join me in congratulating Vicki on her appointment and in welcoming her to Health Sciences.

Michael D. Dake, MD
Senior Vice President, UA Health Sciences
