Program to Ensure Rural Access to Health Care Receives Federal Funding Boost

A program at the University of Arizona Health Sciences that ensures Arizona’s rural communities have access to high-quality health services has received a $3.5 million, five-year grant from the Health Resources and Services Administration to continue its vital efforts in medically underserved areas of the state.
Can the Alzheimer's Brain Regenerate and Recover?

The UA Center for Innovation in Brain Science has received a $37.5 million grant from the National Institutes of Health to research a potential regenerative therapy for Alzheimer's disease.

UA Health Sciences Leads $3M NIH Study to Evaluate Sexual Assault Prevention Program in Arizona Bars

Researchers from the UA Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health and Arizona State University have been awarded a $3 million grant from the National Institutes of Health to evaluate the effectiveness of a sexual assault prevention training program for employees who work in alcohol-serving establishments near Arizona’s three public universities.

Study Changes Guidelines for Sepsis Management

A new study that measured the reliability of administering antibiotics before obtaining blood cultures could end the debate among physicians regarding sepsis management.

Arizona Poison and Drug Information Center Warns of Severe Lung Injury Risk with Vaping

Vaping-related respiratory illness cases – and even vaping-related deaths – are on the rise across the nation, and the Arizona Poison and Drug Information Center at the UA College of Pharmacy is cautioning individuals to avoid, or at least minimize, the use of e-cigarettes.
Building a Pipeline from the Nation's First Tribal College to Neuroscience Laboratories

The UA Health Sciences and Diné College have been awarded a $1.3 million NIH grant to develop a cooperative training program to create a pipeline of Navajo students to advance from Diné College to neuroscience programs at top-tier research universities.

UA College of Medicine – Phoenix, VA Health Care System Improving Treatment Options for Veterans

The UA College of Medicine – Phoenix is partnering with the Phoenix Veterans Affairs Health Care System to provide personalized drug treatment for veterans.

UA Health Sciences Researchers Seek to Treat Pain Caused by Chemotherapy Without Opioids

Researchers at the UA Health Sciences are making progress in an effort to develop an effective treatment for neuropathic pain caused by chemotherapy – without using opioids.

UA Health Sciences Awarded $1.4M Grant for Program that Supports Sleep Apnea Patients

UA College of Medicine – Tucson Professor Sairam Parthasarathy, MD, has been awarded nearly $1.4 million for a peer-support program for sleep apnea patients. The funding will be used to implement the findings of a previous research project in which peers were trained to help patients starting treatment for sleep apnea.

Noted Cardiothoracic Surgeon Joining All of Us Research Program Leadership Team in Arizona

Irving Kron, MD, professor of surgery and senior associate vice president for health sciences at the UA, has been named the new contact principal investigator for the All of Us Research Program at the UA Health Sciences and Banner Health.

UPCOMING EVENTS

| OCT 2 | High Tech Health: Revolutionizing How We Track, Treat and Prevent Disease |
| OCT 2 | "Discovering New Medicines in Arizona" Summit |
| OCT 14 | Advances in Aging Lecture Series with Dr. Amanda Sokon |

UAHS IN THE NEWS

UA Study Suggests Some ‘Jumping Genes’ Not Sufficiently Locked Down

KJZZ Radio

UA plans to build $20M Andrew Weil Center for Integrative Medicine building

Associated Press

UA students provide primary prevention to medically underserved communities

Chamber Business News

RESEARCH
View a monthly listing of UA Health Sciences grant awards