Thanksgiving Message from Dr. Michael D. Dake

Nov. 20, 2018

As we approach the Thanksgiving holiday, I want to share my thanks and appreciation for each of you. Our health sciences community is strong, caring, and committed to serving our educational and research mission because of your efforts. Our strength is in the collective experiences, perspectives and ideas that knit us together, allowing us to adapt to change and remain focused on our core mission.

Together, we are transforming the lives of our students and discovering breakthroughs that will impact the health of our local and global communities. Thank you for inspiring each other to engage our best efforts in these noble causes.

You've made this an extraordinary place to learn, discover and collaborate as we all seek to understand the world around us and the contributions we can make to improve it. Thank you.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Best,

Michael D. Dake, MD
