In The News
Tuesday, April 15, 2014

- Minor foot wounds a major threat for diabetics (Dr. David Armstrong, professor of surgery at the University of Arizona)
  - 04/15/2014 Health24.com
- Cancer prevention guidelines seem to pay off for older women (Cynthia Thomson, a professor of public health at the University of Arizona in Tucson)
  - 04/15/2014 KHGI-TV
- Let’s talk about sleep (Dr. Andrew Weil, a leader in the field of integrative medicine, founder and director of the Arizona Center for Integrative Medicine at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center)
  - 04/15/2014 Bed Times
- Smartphone proves to be a useful tool for teletrauma program (University of Arizona Medical Center [UAMC])
  - 04/15/2014 FierceMobileHealthcare
- More Arizona Parents Not Having Their Children Vaccinated (University of Arizona’s College of Public Health)
  - 04/15/2014 Phoenix New Times
- UA named Biostats director at UA-Phoenix (UA Zuckerman College of Public Health-Phoenix campus, Chengcheng Hu, Ph.D., has been named director of biostatistics)
  - 04/13/2014 Arizona Daily Star
- Mock crash gives real world look at consequences of distracted driving (UAMC Trauma Center)
  - 04/11/2014 Tucson News Now
- Arizona Leads $3.1 Million School-Based Asthma Study (Dr. Lynn B. Gerald, associate dean for research at the College of Public Health and a scientist in the Arizona Respiratory Center)
  - 04/11/2014 ASPPH Friday Letter
- Arizona Names New Assistant Dean (Dr. Cecilia Rosales, has been named assistant dean of the University of Arizona Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health-Phoenix campus)
  - 04/11/2014 ASPPH Friday Letter