In The News
Thursday, May 29, 2014

Phoenix hospital gets $19M gift to create thoracic transplant center (UA Medical Center's world-renowned heart transplant program went on hiatus last year and was reactivated this week. The lung transplant program is expected to also be reactivated)

UA student was 'dead' but found 'the miracle' and lives again (University of Arizona Medical Center)

Andrew Weil discusses super foods (Dr. Andrew Weil, founder and director of the Arizona Program for Integrative Medicine at UA)

Suspended Animation: The Trial Begins (Dr. Peter Rhee, surgeon at the University of Arizona in Tucson)

Armstrong Named to Scientific Advisory Board of the Amputee Coalition (David G. Armstrong, DPM, MD, PhD, Professor of Surgery and Director of the University of Arizona's Southern Arizona Limb Salvage Alliance (SALSA)

UAMC welcomes new members to heart transplant team

Elementary students wear hats to raise funds for cancer research (UA Steele Children's Research Center)

Dangers of Microwave Cooking (Dr. Andrew Weil, founder and director of the Arizona Program for Integrative Medicine at UA)

Arizona Hospitals Cope With Drug Shortages (Ali McBride, a pharmacist at the UA Cancer Center)

A Love Worth the Trip (Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health at the University of Arizona in Tucson)