In The News
Tuesday, Nov. 12, 2013

- UA receives grant to train docs to treat older adults (UA College of Medicine-Tucson)
  - Is Integrative Medicine the Future of Healthcare? - Sanjay Gupta (Andrew Weil, MD, director of the Arizona Center for Integrative Medicine at the University of Arizona)
  - Bouncing and booze: Good for business or a bad mix? (Epidemiologist Dan Judkins, UAMC)
  - Chest compression only CPR training happening this weekend (UA Sarver Heart Center)
  - Pharmacists taking more personal approach to health care (Richard Herrier, a professor at the University of Arizona College of Pharmacy in Tucson)
  - Tucsonans step up for uninsured cancer patient (Alfred Gallegos, a researcher at the University of Arizona Cancer Center)
  - Rio Rico student earns national recognition (Joel Leyva, who has been offered and accepted a $15,000 annual scholarship for four years to the University of Arizona, plans to study medicine)
  - Ariz. district joins STEM project targeting underrepresented students (BIO5 Institute)
  - UA Study Targets Latinas with Breast Cancer (Terry A. Badger, PhD, RN, PMHCNS-BC, FAAN, professor and division director of community and systems health science at the University of Arizona College of Nursing and a member of the UA Cancer Center)
  - Navigating Dietary Supplement Regulations (Dr. Victoria Maizes, executive director at the Arizona Center for Integrative Medicine)
  - Andreas Theodorou, M.D., speaks about teaching students what to do in a health emergency
  - Stanford’s Stutzman, Arizona’s Kibet Pac-12 Cross Country Scholar-Athletes of the Year (UA Public Health senior Elvin Kibet was named the Pac-12 Women’s Cross Country Scholar-Athlete of the Year)