Charles B. Cairns, MD

Dean Charles Cairns, MD, Leaving the UA

Dear Colleagues,

Charles B. Cairns, MD, has resigned from the UA and accepted a new position as dean of the College of Medicine and Health Sciences at United Arab Emirates University.

Dr. Cairns joined the UA Health Sciences in 2014 as assistant vice president for clinical research and clinical trials and vice dean of the UA College of Medicine – Tucson, and became dean of the college in 2015.

His passion for academic excellence and innovation has played a critical role in the advancement of the college and his leadership has continued to strengthen the UA's long-term clinical partnership with Banner Health.

“My years at the University of Arizona have been exhilarating, challenging and most rewarding, and I am grateful to have had the opportunity to work with thoughtful and dedicated colleagues, both in the college and across the health sciences,” said Cairns. “I am proud of our accomplishments in education, training, research, clinical affairs and faculty development over the last four years and I believe our efforts have moved this college—and this university—forward. I have no doubt the future of the UA College of Medicine – Tucson will be bright.”

Please join me in thanking Dr. Cairns for his passion, commitment and service to the UA College of Medicine – Tucson and the entire health sciences community, and in wishing him well in his new endeavors.

Michael D. Dake, MD
Senior Vice President, UA Health Sciences
