Allie Min, MD, FACEP

Allie Min, MD, FACEP, named Assistant Dean for Faculty Development for UA College of Medicine - Tucson

Sept. 15, 2017

I am pleased to welcome Allie Min, MD, FACEP, to our College of Medicine –Tucson team as the Assistant Dean of Faculty Development after a national search. She graduated from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine in 2004 and completed her residency in emergency medicine at the University of Arizona in 2007. She has been on the College of Medicine – Tucson faculty since 2007 and was promoted to Associate Professor in 2016.

As an Associate Professor of Emergency Medicine, her experience as a faculty member includes research, teaching and clinical service contributions. Allie previously served as Chair of the Dean’s Council of Faculty Affairs, playing a key leadership role in bringing faculty issues to the attention of the Dean and bringing creative solutions to complex problems.

She will start in this new position on Jan. 1, 2018, and will be directing faculty development and mentoring programs. Her responsibilities will include directing new faculty orientation, the Learning to Lead program, as well as working with the Women in Academic Medicine group and serving as a liaison with the Dean’s Council on Faculty Affairs.
